REVIEWS —

(The series) "All are thoroughly illustrated . . . replete with bibliographies, annotations, and indices.

The Art & Method of the Violin Maker is . . . a very personal account, written with great erudition and insight. . . . "All these titles are recommended to anyone with even a passing interest in violin literature."

(Cello Making, Step by Step) ". . . contains a wealth of valuable information . . . Strobel's motivation . . . is purely and simply to help someone out here share in the great pleasure of building an instrument to be proud of. I am sure he has already succeeded many times over."
From reviews by John Dilworth in The Strad

(Useful Measurements for Violin Makers) "I hardly know another book where a maker can find all the important measurements in such a clear order. . ."
Karl Roy, Geigenbaumeister, Mittenwald

"It is such a pleasure to read something sensible about the violin and its world. . . . It is also refreshing to read literate English on this subject. . ."
Norman C. Pickering, Past President, VSA

(My Real-World Violin Shop) "This is probably the only such book in existence and Henry has achieved his purpose very well. Nicely written . . . a very welcome bargain."
Leonard Showalter, Editor, SCAVM Bulletin
"If you have your own shop, or plan to set one up - even if you only plan to do a little repair work . . . or sell one or two of your violins - then you NEED this book."
David Brownell, Editor, MVA Journal

(Health of the Violin, Viola, and Cello) ". . . a great wit and humor about it . . . Strobel's translation is wonderful . . . In addition to his other talents as engineer, luthier, scholar, and author, I believe there must also be something of the poet."
Robert Lundberg, Luthier, in American Lutherie

(Violin Making, Step by Step) ". . . is clear, systematic, and full of good information and advice."

("Watch Me Make a Cello, Step by Step"-VIDEO) This is organized to be useful to the first-time cello maker. Strobel shows both traditional hand tool methods (and) power tools . . . With ideas also for the advanced or professional maker, this video displays ways to plan and organize to do "good honest work."
David Brownell, Editor, MVA Journal

(Violin Making, Step by Step) If a beginner could own only one book . . . I'd have to recommend this one above all the others.
Sam R. Compton Jr, Member, Board of Directors, VSA

(Setup and Repair of the Double Bass) "So I am happy for the bassists in New York, and now the whole world, that Chuck has been able in this book to share his insights . . . concern that each bass sound as beautiful as possible." Ron Carter, NY

"Anyone who repairs or wants to repair basses can not afford to be without this book." Bob Branstetter, Kansas City bassist, luthier
